Purchase application

I would like the following purchase calculation:

 Purchases for early retirement

Conditions for purchases for early retirement

Note: Up to 3 months before early retirement only partial purchase is possible. No earlier than three months prior to early retirement, the insured person may offset in full any existing pension shortfall. If a full purchase is made, the retirement benefit can no longer be drawn as capital. Please note the further information under "Good to know".

Contributions to make purchases for early retirement are only possible if

1. You are fully capable of working and gainful employment at the time of the purchase;
2. the regulatory purchase option has been completely exhausted;
3. advance withdrawals made for the purchase of residential property have been recovered or termination benefits received after divorce have been contributed in full.

A payment may only be made once we have sent you the relevant calculation based on your details. Please also note the procedure under «Good to know».

Note: Consequences of continued employment beyond early retirement age:

By making purchases for early retirement, you confirm your intention to effectively withdraw from working life at the defined early retirement age. We will consider this information accordingly. If you remain gainfully employed beyond this age, the total regulatory benefit at the time of your actual retirement may not exceed that at the normal retirement age by more than 5%. Funds raised in excess of this amount go to the pension fund.

- I hereby confirm that I have taken note of the above notice regarding the consequences of continued employment beyond the early retirement age.

Tax-related issues

Capital payment prohibition

There is a three-year capital payment prohibition on making a purchase. For the following three years, benefits may not be drawn in the form of a lump sum. This refers to retirement benefits, advance withdrawals for home ownership and cash payments upon termination of employment.

Otherwise, the tax authorities may consider a capital withdrawal as a circumvention and initiate a supplementary tax procedure because they can consider all 2nd pillar benefit arrangements of a person as a whole.

Tax deductibility

For the purchase sum to be relevant in terms of tax in the current year, it must reach us on or before 31 December of that year. When deciding whether or not a purchase can be deducted from taxes, the tax authorities consider all benefit arrangements and assets of an insured person. We calculate the purchase sum on the basis of the information in our possession and cannot guarantee that this information – in particular affiliation with other pension institutions – is complete and that the purchase will be permitted for tax deduction.

Responsibility

In each case the insured person bears the tax-related consequences associated with purchases or capital withdrawals after purchases have been made. The Foundation accepts no responsibility in this regard.

It is strongly recommended that prior clarification be obtained from the relevant tax authority.

I hereby confirm that all information given is truthful and I have taken note of the tax-related aspects of a purchase.

Good to know

Procedure

To determine your maximum purchase sum, the application must be submitted by the beginning of November. Based on this, we calculate the maximum purchase sum and inform you of the amount. For a purchase sum to become tax-effective in the current year, it must reach us by 31 December of the year at the latest. Purchase payments which exceed the maximum purchase sum will be refunded without interest.
